

FFCHS Participates in the Fifth Meeting of the Presidential Commission for the Study of Bioethical Issues

Non-consensual government experimentation is a daily reality for many thousands of victims in the US and worldwide. Freedom From Covert Harassment and Surveillance (FFCHS), a human rights organization, hopes to have this issue addressed at an upcoming presidential commission meeting in New York City.

Cincinnati, OH (PRWEB) May 18, 2011 -- It is a rare opportunity when people in the electromagnetically-targeted community can speak directly to someone, anyone that is in a position to positively affect their situation. So the hopes of multitudes from the human rights group, Freedom From Covert Harassment and Surveillance(FFCHS), seem to be riding on their participation in an upcoming meeting of the Presidential Commission for the Study of Bioethical Issues in New York City this Wednesday, May 18, 9 am at the Warwick Hotel on 65 W 54th Street. The topic for this meeting is 'Human Research Protections' where the commission will be examining "federal standards regarding human subjects protection in federally-funded scientific studies," according to their website.

The momentum is building in this small section of social activism for the simple reason that although targeted individuals face daunting struggles in almost every area of their lives: physically, emotionally, psychologically, medically, socially, financially, neurologically and more, no agency, organization, or institution so far will acknowledge or address the claims of its victims, which further adds to their burden.

"We have been calling this issue 'the secret holocaust' because we believe that remote mind control programming is being carried out on many, many thousands of people nationwide by the military and intelligence agencies using classified technologies that can remotely access and manipulate an individual mentally and physically whether they are aware of it or not," says Derrick Robinson, president of FFCHS.

From 1946 – 1948 the United States non-consensually infected Guatemalan prisoners and mental patients in a medical trial for syphilis. (<http://www.bbc.co.uk/news/world-us-canada-11457552>) The recent revelation of this atrocity sparked the creation of the Bioethics Commission by President Obama as it holds its fifth public meeting, which will be particularly marked by the scheduled appearance of Rafael Espada, M.D., the Vice-President of Guatemala, on May 18th.

While the commission grapples with the question of whether those who participate in federally-funded human test trials are protected, there continue to be those who find they are victims of non-consensual federally-funded human test programs. What of them? Even Members of Congress have been subjected to non-consensual 'Psy-Ops' mind control operations by the US Army, as reported by Rolling Stone magazine in an article on February 23rd of this year, and denounced in a letter to Congress by the ACLU as reported by "The New Political" of Ohio State University.

The letter states: "The Rolling Stone article reports that U.S. Army officers assigned to an "information operations" cell allege they were directed by their commanders to help them "secretly manipulate the U.S. lawmakers without their knowledge" and plant ideas "inside their heads" so they would provide more U.S. troops to Afghanistan." Silent Sound technologies that subliminally influence human thought and emotion were developed in the early 90's by Dr. Oliver Lowery of Norcross Georgia. They are now in deployment by the US government and "was used throughout Operation Desert Storm (Iraq) quite successfully," according to Edward Tilton, the president of Silent Sounds, Inc., in a letter dated December 13, 1996. From Rolling Stone: "My job in psy-ops is to play with people's heads, to get the enemy to behave the way we want them to behave," says Lt. Colonel Michael Holmes, the leader of the IO unit, who received an official reprimand after bucking orders. "I'm prohibited from doing that to our own people. When you ask me to try to use these skills on senators and congressman, you're crossing a line."

FFCHS believes many lines are being crossed here in the US daily. The organization was formed to address human rights violations brought about by the abuses of what it believes are non-consensual federally-funded mind control research programs. It seeks a halt to such programs and justice for those who are their victims. FFCHS is therefore requesting a vigilant and uncompromising report to the President by the Bioethics Commission of these issues and further requests congressional hearings and an investigation into the covert activities of all U.S. intelligence agencies.
